History

The Journal of Japanese Linguistics (JJL), formerly Papers in Japanese Linguistics (Volume 1, 1972 – Volume 11, 1986), was under the management of Japan's Nanzan University (Volume 12, 1990 – Volume 16, 1998). At the dawn of the new millennium, the JJL editorial office was transferred to Indiana University (Volume 17, 2001 – Volume 21, 2005) in the U.S. The office then moved to the Ohio State University (Volume 22, 2006 – Volume 28, 2015), and to San Francisco State University (Volume 29, 2013 – Volume 33, 2017). From 2018 the journal is published by De Gruyter Mouton and the entire archive will be made available.
